Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 24 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning clear and chilly overnight. Isolated showers tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry overnight with lengthy clear spells developing allowing it to turn chilly, with perhaps a touch of ground frost in prone spots. There will be some patchy thicker cloud at times during the night. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
Largely dry for most with variable amounts of cloud giving some bright or sunny spells. A few showers are possible, mainly during the afternoon. Mild and a little breezy. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Blustery on Friday with a spell of heavy rain pushing across the region. Drier but cooler on Saturday before turning cloudy and damp on Sunday. Windy throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.